

Knock Knock

Sailor

Like the sound of a jungle drum, my heart beats on
For she was born to bring fire
Like a light from an open door, deep inside of me
From the heat of my desire

I hear a knock knock (Who's there?)
It's the birds and the bees calling
From the heavens above
I hear a knock knock (Who there?)
It's a lonely heartbeat tolling
I think I'm falling in love

Like a swim in a waterfall, I've lost control
I'm like a slave to her power
Just like an electric storm
Getting closer
With every spark, every hour

I hear a knock knock (Who's there?)
It's the birds and the bees calling
From the heavens above
I hear a knock knock (Who there?)
It's a lonely heartbeat tolling
I think I'm falling in love
(Falling in love... falling in love... I hear a...)

Like a soft revolution, her precious form
Is too divine to be spoken
Like a part of a dormant dream
Like a desert
Like a long-time lonely silence broken by a

Knock knock (Who's there?)
It's the birds and the bees calling
From the heavens above
I hear a knock knock (Who there?)
It's a lonely heartbeat tolling
I think I'm falling in love
(Falling in love... falling in love... falling in love... I hear a...
)

Who's there (It's the birds and the bees calling)
I think I'm falling in love
Who's there? (It's a lonely heartbeat calling)
I think I'm falling in love
