

Will You Be There

Sam Barber

Sometimes, I wonder when the rain starts to fall Will you pick up if I call?
Step after step on the weary road I walk
Will you pick me up if I fall?

And if I start to drown from this bottle that I down, will you save me?
If my world came crashing down and there's no one around, will you stay with me?
'Cause there is nothing
In this whole damn world that I wouldn't do for you

Minutes into hours, it's been days since I seen your face
I'm worried your love is starting to fade
Now I'm sitting on this train headed south to north Tennessee Just trying to make a living with this six-string

And if I start to drown from this bottle that I down, will you save me?
If my world comes crashing down and there's no one around, woul d you stay with me?
'Cause there is nothing
In this whole damn world that I wouldn't do for you

When I'm traveling home on the worn out road I roam, will you b e there?
Will you be there? Will you still be there?
