

Need You More

Samantha Fish

Need You More

Another bar, another hotel room
I thought maybe you'd be calling soon
But these days fly by without you
Nothing's right, but nothing's wrong
My feet keep moving but my mind's withdrawn
Painfully mistaking my big talk for the truth

And there's no one left for me to take it out on
I revel in the spin down to the bottom
I pushed you out to the unknown
Troubled heart takes the feeling home
And I need you more than you'll ever know

I know that hopeful troubadour
He gave his all, but they needed more
I know that lonely ain't the lowest thing to be

Baptized by fire and compromise
I'm busy chasing my own high
Sometimes when I look in the mirror, it's still a long way out

And there's no one left for me to take it out on
I revel in the spin down to the bottom
I pushed you out to the unknown
A troubled heart takes the feeling home
And I need you more than you'll ever know

There's no one left for me to take it out on
I revel in the spin down to the bottom
I pushed you out to the unknown
A troubled heart take the feeling home
And I need you more than you'll ever know

Said, I need you more than you'll ever know
Oh, I need you more than you'll ever know