

Under the Sun

Sandi Thom

Yesterday has passed away, I only have myself to blame
All the dreams we shared have shattered and faded and tainted by you
Time can mend a broken heart but time can't heal the painful scars
But now this way of life has ended, guess I'm free to stop pretending

Something new under the sun
And it feels like my life has just begun
In my dreams is where I always find
I spread my wings and fly
I spread my wings and fly

Sick and tired of feeling down insecure and helpless
These four walls I've built have helped me stand I've got more guts than I ever had
So thanks for all the memories, I'll erase them now so I can breathe
The ties that bind are coming free, I'm leaving all the dark behind me

Something new under the sun
And it feels like my life has just begun
In my dreams is where I always find
I spread my wings and fly
I spread my wings and fly

Yesterday has passed away I only had myself to blame
All the dreams we shared have shattered and faded and tainted by you
So thanks for all the memories, I'll erase them now so I can breathe
The ties that bind are coming free, I'm leaving all the dark behind me

Something new under the sun
And it feels like my life has just begun
In my dreams is where I always find
I spread my wings and fly
I spread my wings and fly

Something new under the sun
And it feels like my life has just begun
In my dreams is where I always find
I spread my wings and fly
I spread my wings and fly