Undertow

Sara Bareilles

Silly me, look what I did again I found what I want Is what I cannot have I didn't mean to be so predictable But I blame it all on who made you irresistible

And it isn't something I need 'til you tell me I can't Why wear my heart on my sleeve When it looks so good in your hand

My heart breaks in a heart beat And you storm me when you come and go The taste of something so sweet should have Warned me 'bout the undertow Oh, I couldn't find a better man to let me go

Little girl, I don't know why you stay If I had a feather for every time daddy said that I could fly away Old habits are so hard to break It'd be a shame to stop now that I've started to make really good mis takes

And I don't know why I must ask For the forbidden fruit I saw the snake in the grass But I had bitten too soon

My heart breaks in a heart beat And you storm me when you come and go The taste of something so sweet should have Warned me 'bout the undertow Oh, I couldn't find a better man to let me go

I should have seen you coming in Should recognize the signs a wave's gonna break Now, I've given in, why fight it when I'm resigned to simply live in your wake Your wake

Heart breaks in a heart beat And you storm me when you come and go The taste of something so sweet should have Warned me 'bout the undertow Oh, I couldn't find a better man to let me go No no no no I couldn't find a better man to let me go
