Sarah Blackwood

Watchin' a stretch of road, miles of light explode.
Driftin' off a thing i'd never done before
Watchin' a crowd roll in. out go the lights it begins.
A feelin' in my bones i never felt before

People always told me. that bars are dark and lonely
And talk is often cheap and filled with air
Sure sometimes they thrill me
But nothin' could ever chill me.
Like the way you make the time just disappear

Feelin' you are here again. hot on my skin again.
Feelin good a thing i'd never known before
What does it mean to feel? Millions of dreams come real
A feelin' in my soul I'd never felt before

You always told me
No matter how long it holds me if it falls apart or makes us mi llonaires. You'll be right here forever
We'll go thru this thing together
And on heaven's golden shore we'll lay our heads
