

Love of Your Life

Sarah Cothran

Your boyfriend's almost kind and nice when
He keeps his mouth closed
Think you'd be better off without him
Wonder if you know
And I can bring the duct tape just in case
He raises a stone
Cause if it aches like that when I'm over
What happens when you're alone?

Even though he says he loves you, darling
He doesn't give a lot to lose

Don't you want something more than simply good enough
That you can't sleep, no you can't breathe without his love
Obsessing over him until I shut you out
Or maybe what I want for you is way too much
Just wish he did it for you like the right one should
And I hate to say that if he wanted to, he would
I think I might just kill him if he makes you cry
What a sorry excuse for the love of your life

Your happy-ever-after could be
An upgrade to say the least
I don't want you to get heartbroken
But it could be one clean sweep
Well burn the house, trade your cards
Dye your hair, leave tomorrow
Find a new identity
Oh, it could be so easy

Don't you want something more than simply good enough
That you can't sleep, no you can't breathe without his love
Obsessing over him until I shut you out
Or maybe what I want for you is way too much
Just wish he did it for you like the right one should
And I hate to say that if he wanted to, he would
I think I might just kill him if he makes you cry
What a sorry excuse for the love of your life

You cry, I kill him
You cry, oh-oh
You cry, I kill him

You cry, I kill him
You cry, oh-oh
You cry, I kill him

Even though he says he loves you, darling
He doesn't give a lot to lose
