

Bridge

Sarah Klang

There's a bridge in my town
Where some people goes up to jump
I thought about it many times
But I always pussied out somehow
I can feel it in the wind
Salty pieces from the ocean blowing in
You know it's time for a change
When you're pushing thirty, but feel the same

I tried to get out of here once
We drove all the way and I was gone
I stayed with the kindest man in town
But I broke his heart
And he broke mine, yeah

I used to be the wild one
At Alice's party I got naked and drunk
I'm not embarrassed by it now
But when it happened, I thought I was gonna die
Looking back at us now
Twenty-one and I still miss her smile
I see her walking down the street
But now I'm older and she's still young to me

I tried to get out of here once
We drove all the way and I was gone
I stayed with the kindest man in town
But I broke his heart
And he broke mine, yeah
He broke mine, yeah
