

Tomorrow Too Late

Saves the Day

Light beams through windows stream into my eyes my eyes explode like red balloons as it reminds me of you so long ago wind blows through a hole in the roof brings your perfume like lillies to me and all I can do is remember you

When was the last time
I held you all through the night feels like a zillion years and I don't wanna wait more to find you is to lose you, what is that for?
tell me

When was the last time
I held you all through the night
Never a worry would run through my heart like a knife
feels like a zillion years and I don't want to wait more
to find you is to lose you,
what is that for?
one more night and I might never know who you are
tell me

When was the last time
I held you all through the night
Never a worry would run through my heart like a knife
When was the last time
I held you all through the night
Never a worry would run through my heart like a knife tomorrow is much too late

I need you now be my light tomorrow is much to late I need you now