

Stop Signs and Alarm Clocks

Scrubs

stop signs; waking up to your alarm clock these machines tell you when to stop and start your day bound by the bands worn on our wrists bound by the suits we wear to work reminding us we're really no one at all i feel so sick
when did living
become this?
you've got the world on strings but you won't make a buck off me
i'm gonna cut those strings with the knife you sold me
on tv attending institutions to educate ourselves that teach us only how to be insignificant medicating ourselves so we don't get too down never stopping to think that sometimes we're supposed to be sad our guide is a screen with images it tells us how to live and in the breaks it tells us that we need to own history's most significant development is the ability to horrifically annihilate ourselves

i feel so sick
become this?
buck off me
on tv
i learned it on tv
i learned it on tv
