

Young Strangers

Sea Girls

Tide rises and the gloom draws in
Forty more minutes on a parking meter
Forty more years saying, "Pleased to meet you"
They're shit rich and we're so pure
We might seem different, but we're not that special
Give us something to believe in now

You only live once
And oh, we got time
You should see the car crash of my mind
Yeah, you want a chance
Well, so do I
We're two young strangers trying to survive

I'm a lot more like you than you like (Than you like)
I'm a lot more like you than you like (Than you like)
I'm a lot more like you
Two young strangers trying to survive
I'm a lot more like you than you like

Big old lights, discount shops
Shaking your bones till you hear them clapping
Everybody knows England's collapsing
But I'm naive and he was too
Used to be different, but now we're special
We've got something to believe in now

You only live once
And oh, we got time
You should see the car crash of my mind
Yeah, you want a chance
Well, so do I
We're two young strangers trying to survive

I'm a lot more like you than you like (Than you like)
I'm a lot more like you than you like (Than you like)
I'm a lot more like you
Two young strangers trying to survive
I'm a lot more like you than you like

When we get together, we could burn down the house
Oh, fuck it all, we're going mouth-to-mouth

You only live once
But we got time
You should see the car crash of my mind
Yeah, you want a chance (Want a chance)
Well, so do I
We're two young strangers trying to survive

I'm a lot more like you than you like (Than you like)
I'm a lot more like you than you like (Than you like)
I'm a lot more like you
Two young strangers trying to survive
I'm a lot more like you than you like
