

Void

Seahaven

There's a void I've been filling for sometime with nothing good
Nothing good
Found the hurt in the foreshadow that was a line of blood
A line of blood
I've been hiding for the lion's share of a lonely life, a lonely life
A little people shy
I've not been dry, for far too long that I fear for what's inside
Oh
And so it goes, simply is at always was, and always will
Seem to go

Only time will tell
Only time will tell
Only time will tell the rest
Only time will tell
Only time will tell
Only time will tell the rest
Only time can tell
Only time can tell, can tell the rest

There's a void I've been filling for some time with nothing good
Nothing good
Meet the means that could satisfy these needs, baby please
Baby please
Watch the world, watch your back, feel the waves when they crash
Watch the world swallow all your plans
Curse the stars, listen back, hear the absence that is left
Curse the smile on your face that you lack

So take the dose that will help the most
Till you feel the rope tighten on your throat
You see we're all just sailing home at our own pace
So watch the world, and you watch your back
Feel the waves when they crash
Watch the world swallow anything and everything that's left
Anything that you have ever loved