

Grace

Second Person

Grace may not mean being wise
Grace may not mean making sense
Grace leaves us with no real cover
Grace came as a surprise
Grace made the difference
Just grace before this game was over

Before we both hang up the phone
Grow dependent on our friends
Before we separate to sort our stories
We go back to being alone
It's only out of good intents
There is a period of grace before that

Grace
Is if I die before tomorrow
I die happy in the knowledge that I
Didn't cause you pain
When I had the choice
I made it in your favor
And we never said forever
But for now now and forever are the same

I think of you at night
At a quarter after twelve
It's as if I could reach out to touch you
When there is so little light
That you can only see yourself
And you worry that the world will watch you

I have learnt a lot from you
I've been wearing all your clothes
I take everything that you have to give me
Grace came so overdue
To a door so nearly closed
Grace came before you had to leave me

Grace
Is if you die before tomorrow
You can die happy in the knowledge that you
Didn't cause me pain
When you had the choice
You made it in my favor
And we never said forever
But for now now and forever are the same

You think the candles all have eyes
And your nerves have turned to wise
And the weeks are flickering and smoking
You can feel your long kept sighs
Beneath the weight of these attacks
Your heart is swallowed whole and now you're choking

Outside the city screams
And the windows are so thin
That everything you fear can see inside you
You've been dreaming other people's dreams

Dreams of people you have never been
But I know who you are and I can find you

Oh if I die before tomorrow
I die happy in the knowledge that I
Didn't cause you pain
When I had the choice
I made it in your favor
And we never said forever
But for now now and forever are the same

And if you die before tomorrow
You can die happy in the knowledge that you
Didn't cause me pain
When you had the choice
You made it in my favor
And we never said forever
But for now now and forever are the same
For now now and forever are the same
