

Nerve

Second Person

You're quick to learn, you're quick to move
Quick to turn and disapprove
Put up my need, 'cause you're my, I need you mine
And let me find you a punishment to fit the crime

'Cause you like to play with fire
And you like to play with stones
But you will have to try much harder to break my bones

You can't play for money, you don't play for love
But at least you do repeat yourself "enough"
Quick to condemn, quick to condone
Simple as that to check and take them home
You're not convinced, is that so
Well you want fingerprints before you know
You've changed your mind, you're not sure
Although you are showing that you were before

But you like to play forever
And you say you play with words
But it will take much more than you to break my nerves

You like to play with fire
And you like to play with stones
But you will have to try much harder to break my bones

And you say you'd play forever
And you say you play with words
But it will take much more than you
It will take much more than you
It will take much more than you to break my nerves