

I'm Fine

Self Esteem

I can change my mind
I tried to be kind
That doesn't mean I have to hear through everyone who You told my shit to Shit I did not consent to Still I served you 'cause I didn't know how not to
I can change my mind
I tried to be kind
That doesn't mean you get to twist your idea of Truth and history
Question my complicity
Yeah, you scare me
Does that make you feel manly?

No, not me
I won't rein in my
Need to be
Completely free

Kept it all inside myself
'Cause you have no leg to stand on
When you live your life as proudly
And as sexually as I like to be
You took that from me and you used it
But I'll never lose it

Do you understand the pain you cause
When you see a body just for sport?
I tried to let you down so gently
When I had the right to tell you simply

No, not me
I won't rein in my
Need to be
Completely free
No, not me
I won't rein in my
Need to be
Completely free

Everyday (everyday, everyday)
I have my keys in my hand
This is like... and it sounds so stupid but it's genuinely something that me and my friends actually do
If we are approached by a group of men we will bark, like dogs
And people always laugh and they're like "Ha ha, that's so funny" (It
's actually really good)
But there is... there is nothing that terrifies a man more than a woman that appears completely deranged