

Daydream Tragedy

Semblant

Digging for relief in a downward spiral
An immoral trial to confront our grief
A stitch comes undone with the passing hour
Myriad of flowers coming one by one

Growing disbelief in a time of sorrow
The dreaded morrow refuses to be brief
A memory comes undone with the passing hour
Myriad of flowers crying one by one

Can't endure the pain
The neverending rain that wipes all tears
Can't endure the pain
The everlasting stain that never clears

Let me hear you singing one more time
Before the dream is over
Before my world collides
Let me hear you singing one more time
Before my eyes are open wide
As the dream just dies

As the mourning ends, hoping for salvation
There's no damnation, no need for amends
A heart comes undone with the passing hour
Myriad of flowers dying one by one

Can't endure the pain
The neverending rain that wipes all tears
Can't endure the pain
The everlasting stain that never clears

Let me hear you singing one more time
Before the dream is over
Before my world collides
Let me hear you singing one more time
Before my eyes are open wide
As the dream just

Let me hear you singing one more time
Before the dream is over
Before my world collides
Let me hear you singing one more time
Before my eyes are open wide
