

This Season

Seven Nations

(Words and music by Kirk McLeod, arranged by Seven Nations)

Daniel closed his eyes as if it didn't happen
And he wondered why every time this season
Feel it in the air, see it in the lightning
And he wondered why it always felt so frightening
I will remember you this way
As sure as the night divides the day
As sure as the sun goes down
Then he looked at me his eyes heavy with reason
And he spoke of how she never stopped to listen
When she got the news she wrecked her room in anger
Never looked at me, she telephoned the doctor
I will remember you this way
As sure as the night divides the day
As sure as the sun goes down
Which way's on and on, his question fell
Like rain on the window like I never will
His face touched the glass, his finger traced
The path of the water
The lines on his face
I will remember you this way
As sure as the night divides the day
As sure as the sun goes down.
