

Silhouettes

Shallou

You were a light
And a different point of view
In retrospect, you're the one thing that was true
And you can take these darkened skies and make them bright blue
And you can take this broken mind and make it brand new

When I'm passing through all these hotel rooms like a silhouette
You're not making it easy to walk alone
I have to let you go

You were a light
And a different point of view
I just regret, that I never let you through
And I can feel this life won't be so bright without you
Cause we just need someone to say its worth seeing through

When I'm passing through all these hotel rooms like a silhouette
You're not making it easy to walk alone
I have to let you go

When I'm passing through all these hotel rooms like a silhouette
You're not making it easy to walk alone
I have to let you go