

Sweet Forgiveness

Shannon McNally

The news blows cold in my veins everyday I wake to more of the same the garden don't grow cause greed never gets old.

And my weapon of choice has a lonely voice it's lost in the brambles and buried in the noise but I hear it still, faint, but steady calling.

So forgive my love, forgive my broken heart was anything ever so hard I'm angry to the bone
feeling all alone, sweet forgiveness

Forgiving my love doesn't make them right for taking what was ours and wounding the light but it all comes back around in many unseen ways they get theirs, they get theirs, they get theirs may we never seek revenge may that bill never be paid if this ache in our hearts is ever to go away we only feed their greed by carrying that rage.

forgive my love, was anything ever so hard I'm angry to the bone

Sweet forgiveness, sweet forgiveness may this melody reveal
and help me to heal with forgiveness

Cause I don't want a life that's soft and high if it means that others must suffer and die for my comfort cause I just don't know how to shut my eyes, shut my eyes, shut my eyes

so forgive my love, forgive my broken heart
I'm angry to the bone

sweet forgiveness
may this melody reveal
