Connect

Sick Puppies

There's a thousand miles between us As I feel your breath on my skin There are so many things I want to say But I don't know how to begin

I want to connect with you Over the oceans and back to the truth I want to connect with you

I'm standing right beside you Screaming in my head I don't know how to reach you I shut down instead When all I want to do is connect with you

The silence is defining Your heartbeat's been heard from next door I knock but no answer You know I've never done this before

I want to connect with you Over the oceans and back to the truth I want to connect with you

I'm standing right beside you Screaming in my head I don't know how to reach you I shut down instead When all I want to do is connect with you

Distance can be measured by The pain you feel inside your heart We could be together Or be five million miles apart But that wouldn't stop me

I want to connect with you Over the oceans and back to the truth I want to connect with you

I'm standing right beside you Screaming in my head I don't know how to reach you I shut down instead When all I want to do is connect with you