Desert Nights

Silverstein

I'm running back to you, keep running back to you

This is where I lay, I've been drunk for seven days I couldn't tell the truth, so I made up alibis to hide my disho nest life

Wait, there's something I can't explain so I'm giving in again All these desert nights they keep me running back to you

The fever takes a hold I never thought I'd miss the cold This is how I know that I'm still able to feel my own insides Breathe in and think twice

Wait, there's something I can't explain so I'm giving in again All these desert nights they keep me running back to you This isn't my first mistake there are things that I can't undo But from this mess I'm in, I'm always running back to you

I can't stay here buried

I can't go on living with these alibis to hide my dishonest lif

Please forgive me, there's no where else to hide

Wait, there's something I can't explain so I'm giving in again All these desert nights they keep me running back to you Wait, there's something I can't explain so I'm giving in again All these desert nights they keep me running back to you This isn't my first mistake there are things that I can't undo But from this mess I'm in, I'm always running back to you

And from this mess I'm in, I'm running back to you
