

Corn Dog Sonnet No. 7

Sincere Engineer

I had a corn dog
I fell asleep
I feel weird now
I had a bad dream about you and me
It's been a few days
I took a shower
Watched some TV
Fed a sunflower
I'm still learning how to be

What am I supposed to do now?
What am I supposed to do now?
When you're still not around
And you're all I think about?

It's super nice out
And I'm too scared to leave my house
So I fall asleep on the couch

What am I, what am I
Supposed to do now?
What am I, what am I
Supposed to do now?
What am I, what am I
Supposed to do now?

Remember last night?
The drunken run-in my front door had with my forehead
This bruise ain't so bad
It looks alright in kitchen lighting
No one will see it, cause I'm not leaving
I'm gonna mope around instead

What am I supposed to do now?
What am I supposed to do now?
When you're still not around
And you're all I think about

It's super nice out
And I'm too scared to leave my house
So I fall asleep on the couch

What am I supposed to do now?
What am I supposed to do now?
When you're still not around
And you're all I think about

It's super nice out
But I'm too scared to leave my house
So I listen to The Brokedowns
They remind me of you and I feel sorry for myself
And have another corn dog and fall asleep on the couch
