

It just ain't the same
The shadow that is hiding me
Doesn't seem to work on you as well

Who am I to blame?
I'm desperate for an eye to see me
But everyone has gone to bed

Several constellations
Everywhere I'm displaced
Pushing around their traces
To get their dust off my face

Where do I go from here?
Guess I should disappear

It hurts the more
They get to know
What if I was just a no one
Won't be a shame
The sun comes up
And casts upon
Oh, I'm just another shade of
You in the fame
Oh, it just ain't the same

In the back of the room under dimmed lights
I found my view
Walls talk more than we do
Sipping on the quiet
It's nothing new

(Hm hm, hm hm, hm hm
Hm hm, hm hm, hm hm)

I watch them dance
They seem so sure
In my two left feet
I search for a cure

It hurts the more
They get to know
What if I was just a no one
Won't be a shame
The sun comes up
And casts upon
Oh, I'm just another shade of
You in the fame
Oh, it just ain't the same

"I always want to achieve something. This feeling of wanting to achieve something, like... always ends up, like, eating myself up. We feed our ego, but what do we actually get from that?"