Idle Minds

Skyharbor

You rose above, transcended all
Now I suffer and take the fall
I gave you all that love could give
But karma called

Scrub up, operate on this blood red stone
Here we go

I try not complicate but this is not a celebration now
No, I'm moving on

You rose above, transcended all
Now I suffer and take the fall
I gave you all that love could give
But karma called

Who, who are you, if I can be so bold?
Oh, did you let it slip to the ones who came before?
We live in an isolated, unforgiving world

Oh, everyone deserves to be
Righteous, free and satisfied
Oh, everyone deserves to be
Righteous, free and satisfied

If I can do it myself, then you can do it yourself
If I can do it myself, then you can do it yourself
If I can do it myself, then you can do it yourself

Oh, every time I fly away
I leave my body behind

Asphyxiated on this cold hard floor
You are the ivy and you take control
Please let me go, release me from your stronghold

I see the consequence of open doors
I get the sense that I've been here before
I see the consequence of open doors
This honest lust has made me want you more

Here stands my guilt intent
Pretending to let go
Here for the final time
Statue of a broken line
Pretending to let go
Here for the final time

You are the ivy that suffocates
These crooked limbs, these rusting walls
Idle minds forget the past
Idle minds are doomed to pass

Don't be afraid, be victorious
This sudden urge for a needless thought
Close the door, the night is ours
The need for change is in us all

Don't be afraid
