

Medicine

Slowly Slowly

I like my pills bitter and my mirrors telling lies
Eyes shining like aluminum, I'm fooling all the spies
Everything is heavy, I don't wanna say I'm tired
Dancing round the obvious, grooving through the fire
It's there early in the morning and worse before I sleep
I think I got it bad, tiny hairs on your cheek
Where's the medicine you take to forget?
I forget

I call you good for nothing in the hope that I'll agree
I box you up in Tupperware and label you disease'
Bury you in China where no one's gonna find ya
But oh my god here we go, I hope you set a timer
It's a new world record, I'm the champion of the universe
Fucking put me in a hearse

Daffodils, frangipanis all have leaves
But we cut em all away, it's not what you wanna see
Where's the medicine you take to believe?
I'm on my knees

So tell me lately have the stars moved?
Do you do voodoo, is that what you do?
I just got to know me
Hey c'mon, they were alright
That phony motherfucker
Never hurt a fly

I like my changes cool not this Truman Show shit
Plot twist season 2, oh you'll never guess it
But it's coming like a freight train of quick cut dopamine
But I'm from the 90's I like really, really long scenes
Early in the morning and right before I sleep
I think I got it bad, lashes shaking when I speak
Where's the medicine that gives you those dreams
When you sleep?
