

Superpowers

Slowly Slowly

Alright so you get a superpower, and you choose to fly
Would it get lonely by yourself, way up high?
I imagine all the noise from the winds would annoy you
And carrying the outfits you need to change into Freeze on the ocean, cook under the sun
Your body was just made to run

Okay new superpower, you want to disappear
So now you're invisible at will, my dear that just happens to be my greatest fear
It might be nice being nude with the world as your bedroom Stealing things and messing with your friends I'd assume
But wouldn't it be nice to disappear with someone else
To not have it all confined to your creepy little self?

Change your superpower, okay you wanna stop time
All your family, friends and strangers - stuck like frozen mimes
And you could pick pocket their change, give them haircuts that they'll hate
But do you think all of that power just maybe might just turn sour?
Where would you find satisfaction? All you wanted, now you have it
Never had to work for it and everyone would question it

New superpower, you're never gonna die
You wanna watch all your friends and family disappear over time
? Oh please
This one is a no brainer, you'd lose all context with no savior
It's imminent death that keeps you at your best
You need a fire underneath you, or nothing's gonna teach you
A reason to open your eyes

Look I don't want a superpower, I just wanna survive
I want to feel present when you talk, just feel alive
I'm gonna do what I want and not for the coin
But because if I don't, then what's the point?
Money and power just won't scratch the itch
So maybe we don't have to wish
You don't need superpowers