

Too Late

Smith & Burrows

Everybody else is breaking something
Is there any left for you and I?
We can hear the bell sound in the evening
Them more than an alibi
When you're next to me, we're parting the red sea
You're my echinacea
Put another coin into the machine
I need to hear my future one more time
Every little atom will stand up and scream
Every little look is on my mind
When you're next to me, the electricity
I can taste in the water

Please, we don't have forever
Play a song, play a song that keeps this together
It's too late now
Don't be hard on yourself, just 'cause everything's over
It's too late now
Don't be hard on your brothers or hard on your sisters

Sitting on the bench, we watch the world crumble
Tickets to [?] to lie on our backs
Looking to the sky, we don't see the rumble
We, just got the morning dew on our hands
You're next to me, oh patiently waiting for nothing, ah

Please, we don't have forever
Play a song, play a song that keeps this together
It's too late now
Don't be hard on yourself, just 'cause everything's over
It's too late now
Don't be hard on your brothers or hard on your sisters

Please, please, please, please

It's too late now
Don't be hard on yourself, just 'cause everything's over
It's too late now
Don't be hard on your brothers or hard on your sisters
It's too late now
Don't be hard on yourself, just 'cause everything's over
It's too late now
Don't be hard on your brothers or hard on your sisters
It's too late, everything's over
It's too late, it's too late, it's too late
It's too late, everything's over
It's too late, it's too late, it's too late
