

You May Find Your Heart

Sniff 'n' the Tears

You may find your heart
In spite of all you do
You may laugh or sneer despise
At what goes on all around you
The feelings you can try
To shrug off without sorrow
Won't matter now but they'll be back
To hit twice as hard tomorrow

You may find your heart on some horizon
You may find your heart
You may find your heart won't need persuasion
You may find your heart

You left without a word
One cold Monday morning
Packed your glad rags stuffed your handbags
Took off without warning
If the future lies within
A life untried
I know that you won't compromise
You'll leave no desire denied

You may find your heart on some horizon
You may find your heart
You may find your heart won't need persuasion
You may find your heart

You may hurry down
The road to ride on
Wear your freedom like a flag
With no sucker to depend on
You might trade in kind
With others who want nothing
Where what you say and what you feel
Need have no points touching

You may find your heart on some horizon
You may find your heart
You may find your heart won't need persuasion
You may find your heart
