This Momentary Bliss

My eyes are bleeding They search for someone else And end up somewhere else Where the expendable souls go They must be watching this We're running out Stare through a glass wall Until you We must be bigger The momentary bliss

Don't let the light You see restrain you Don't put your trust In the dark outside There will be more than You ever could die for This momentary bliss Is a lie

Unlock the treasure Of brand new emotion I drink it up Like a demon of faith I reckon someone Will see my devotion For I wil be the One to get closer Closer to a life I chase it right into A well of redemption Well of redemption

Don't let the light You see restrain you Don't put your trust In the dark outside There will be more than You ever could die for This momentary bliss Is a lie

Don't let the light You see restrain you Don't put your trust In the dark outside There will be more than You ever could die for This momentary bliss Is a lie

The enemy is what you feel Believe my words The enemy is what you feel He is real The enemy is what you feel Believe my words

Soilwork

The enemy is what you feel He is real The enemy is what you feel Believe my words The enemy is what you feel He is real The enemy is what you feel Believe my words The enemy is what you feel He is real

Don't let the light You see restrain you Don't put your trust In the dark outside There will be more than You ever could die for This momentary bliss Is a lie