

Back To The Start

Soja

The weight of this world it can drown you at sea
Looking for land in the dark
And the water gets high and suddenly you feel
There's nothing to hold to at all
'Cause you can get caught up in all the wrong things
If you don't know where you are
So look for the light that is shining within-
Leading you back to your heart, back to the start

Waiting for the world to fix you is like waiting for the mountains to fall
Waiting for the truth to find you is like waiting for nothing at all
The truth was born inside you, it's everything you need to call
Your ancestors to find you, to bring you back where you started from

The weight of this world it can drown you at sea
Looking for land in the dark
And the water gets high and suddenly you feel
There's nothing to hold to at all
'Cause you can get caught up in all the wrong things
If you don't know where you are
So look for the light that is shining within-
Leading you back to your heart, back to the start
Back to the start
Leading you back to your heart, back to the start
Back to the start
Leading you back to your heart

It's so easy to slip when your mental power broke
Making wrong moves on a dead end road
'Cause the face inside the mirror isn't yours anymore
When the person you've become is the person you hated most
You know it's never too late to make the bad times change
Get you back to the beginning before life got in the way
Look inside for the truth let it pump
From your heart
And trickle down to your roots to bring you back to start now

The weight of this world it can drown you at sea
Looking for land in the dark
And the water gets high and suddenly you feel
There's nothing to hold to at all
'Cause you can get caught up in all the wrong things
If you don't know where you are
So look for the light that is shining within-
Leading you back to your heart, back to the start
Back to the start
Leading you back to your heart, back to the start
Back to the start
Leading you back to your heart

The weight of this world it can drown you at sea
Looking for land in the dark
And the water gets high and suddenly you feel
There's nothing to hold to at all
'Cause you can get caught up in all the wrong things
If you don't know where you are
So look for the light that is shining within-

Leading you back to your heart

The weight of this world it can drown you at sea
Looking for land in the dark
And the water gets high and suddenly you feel
There's nothing to hold to at all
'Cause you can get caught up in all the wrong things
If you don't know where you are
So look for the light that is shining within-
Leading you back to your heart, back to the start