

Legacy

Sol

Legacy... yeah

Take a trip down memory lane, wonder if you'll remember my name?

I live my life like the canvas is plain (why?), cause it is, is whatever you think, ey

Do what you love by any means, go all the way, no in between, I don't know everything

But I do know you gotta be proud, so I'ma write my odyssey starting now

Boy been a man since boy figured out, how to be the prince and never wear the crown, I would much rather stay close to the ground, where my people at, where I'm needed at

Nah I needed that, grew up on that, with my family tree holding me, I swing from the branch, hope to land on my feet with the mic in my hand, I was thinking legacy before puberty man, damn

Ain't that some shit?

Yeah that's some shit

Grew up on tracks like this

They'll take you back like this

(Hold up, pull up, roll up, pull up, now ah) They'll want to rap like this

(Hold up, pull up, roll up, pull up, blah) They'll take you back like this

Since Diddy did the Harlem Shake, I was in the 5th grade thinking hall of fame, no MJ, more like Nas and Jay and I was catching bars, before I caught the fame, young soul with the lineup, afro big with the blackfist full looking like a q-tip, I was on the rap shit, rocking that fat forearm with a bad bitch, scratch that was some acne

And the yellow bus in the backseat, was an outcast, 'till they gave me a break b, now 'I'm the stage, almost 23, only 28, been an OG, lowkey

Ain't that some shit?

Ain't that some shit?

Yeah that's some shit

Grew up on tracks like this

They'll take you back like this

(Hold up, pull up, roll up, pull up, now ah) They'll want to rap like this

(Hold up, pull up, roll up, pull up, blah) They'll take you back like this

I remember days we would waste by, make believe on the stage in the backyard, now we got the whole city as a backdrop, you can really test the people making hip-hop

Got a message yesterday, said I saved somebody's life through a song that I wrote when I was going through some times, you never know the blessings that you gave, guess I'm both getting paid and making change

Legacy

I bet you remember me, I'd like to see them get rid of me, I got no enemies, and I'll live forever b, cause I live through my energy

Ain't that some shit?

Yeah that's some shit
