

Wrong Direction

Solar Fake

You're asking questions but you never wait until you get my reply
And yet I'll keep on trying to be polite, to wear a decent smile
It's getting harder for me to understand what this is all about
Am I still part of the life that made me feel that I remain unowed

But I'm always the light that shines
To see through your habits
And I'll always be the reason why you'll fail

But when daylight falls on us
And you face a life that's just a fuss
You're so far from past perfection
'Cause you ran the wrong direction

And when daylight falls on us,
Time to realise you're out of trust
You're no part in my reflection
'Cause you ran the wrong direction

If I could be the one you'd wish to see in me
But it's hopeless
I can't pretend you're any more than a joke to me
So I am silent
And I wish myself any place but here
You know, it's hurting
But I'm used to that, I've learnt to disappear