

Waking Up

Soldiers of Jah Army

I'm just now waking up to what life is facing us and to what we're all became some people call your name, but it's not the same..
I'm just now waking up

We think we know good, we think we know the bad we think we know just what this world is spinning for We think we move up, while we're stepping back Increasing till this world, it just can't take no more And I've got myself to blame, my acid rain is my tears My church is blue and green, from space, I mean, it's clear...

We're supposed to watch over this world, cuz we're the ones all the tools and all the scars.
But all we do is increase the load, cuz we're the ones with all the guns and all the cars And we've got our shoes to fill, and we won't until we drop Cuz this race can't be endured if we don't know where to stop we're visiting here, we're just passing here, can't settle down we're like the wind here, yeah we blow in here and we blow our But I've got myself to blame, and I won't be here for too long But I'll leave my footprints here before we're all gone.
