

lost cause

Sophie Cates

I still have the coat that you tore off
And I still get the feeling of pain with my thoughts
Don't drive when you're high, don't bring me along
Don't say that you love me
Don't tell me what went wrong

And don't lie to me
But don't tell me the truth
It's sweet and sickening
How I would die for you
So don't say you love me
'Cause we both know that's not true
But press your lips against my skin again
Give me something to pray to

Honey, you're a lightweight for true love
And when your smile fades, you look like God
He cried, "I'm a lost cause and your hopes are up"
Then took a sip of what's drowning us

And don't lie to me
But don't tell me the truth
It's sweet and sickening
How I would die for you
So don't say you love me
'Cause we both know that's not true
But press your lips against my skin again
Give me something to pray to
