Sorcha Richardson

I dropped my headphones in the harbor
So I hummed your song the whole way home
I could of tried a little harder, oh
I don't know why
I just like it here alone

So please don't say you're coming over
Please don't say you're coming over
I just finished cutting all the cords from the telephone
Please don't say you're coming over
Please don't say you're coming over
'Cause the sun will rise and I'll spill a line that you already know

Sleep all the windows and doors open
In the summertime
The sirens float towards my mind
Do you think something here is broken, love?
Look me in the eye
And tell me everything is fine

It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning
I think you should go

It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning
I think you should go

Please don't say you're coming over (say you're coming over)
Please don't say you're coming over (say you're coming over)
I just finished cutting all the cords from the telephone
Please don't say you're coming over (say you're coming over)
Please don't say you're coming over (say you're coming over)
'Cause the sun will rise and I'll spill a line that you already know (that you already know)

It's four in the morning
It's four in the morning
[?] sometimes when I'm changing my mind
Just walk out the door
It's four in the morning
It's four in the morning
[?] sometimes when I'm changing my mind

You will always think you can just stay 'til the morning
Like it's not even important what I want (you will always, you will always)
You really think you can just tell me you're sorry
And I'll be ready and waiting to move on? (you will always, you will always)

It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning
[?] sometimes when I'm changing my mind
I think you should go
Just walk out the door

It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning, I think you should go
It's four in the morning
[?] sometimes when I'm changing my mind
I think you should go
Take all your [?], don't come back here no more
