

Words Fail Me

Southside Johnny & The Asbury Jukes

The kid's are gone the coffees on
She stumbles down in all her morning glory
The gift to me such a sight to see
She rubs my neck and says she had a dream
I sit back and listen to her story
Sunlight glances off her cheek
I hear her laugh I try to speak
Words fail me

How can I explain it'd take a million words or more
Just to tell her how I feel
And every time I feel this way

I struggle for the words to say
But she understands
And she takes my hand, and once again
Words fail me
How can I explain it'd take a million words or more
Just to tell her how I feel
And every time I feel this way
I struggle for the words to say
But she understands that I'm just a man
Oh, and I will do the best I can
And she takes my hand, and once again
Words fail me
