

Cold Nights

Stan Walker

It was a rose colored kind of emotion the way we could feel
In our rush of affection unspoken, it had to be real
We neglected our love, left it broken with no room to heal
Are we nearing at the end of the road, letting go of the wheel?

I'm dying to reach you
Just say what you mean, take your aim
I'm trying to see your side
I'll take my half of the blame, now

Show me that it's worth the fight
Meet me on the frontline
And I'll be here through

Cold nights, hard times
Arms wide, fighting through these
Cold nights
To make something new
So tell me what if we say what we need
Learn how breathe and love again
Oh, I'll brave these cold nights
It's worth it with you

Is anybody home? I'm sensing a vacancy here
This love's turned to stone that I can't pull much longer, I fear
You're pushing me out like it's all that you know how to do
I can't be your lover if I've still got something to prove

You hear me, I know it
Stop dancing around what you mean
You need it, I hear you
But I'm not the type to retreat

Through cold nights, hard times
Arms wide, fighting through these
Cold nights
To make something new
So tell me what if we say what we need
Learn how to breathe and love again
Oh, I'll brave these cold nights
It's worth it with you, hey

Cold nights, hard times
Arms wide, fighting through these
Cold nights
To make something new
So tell me what if we say what we need
Learn how to breathe and love again
I'll brave these cold nights
It's worth it with you

No matter the ending
I'm pushing for mountains to move
Wherever we're heading
I'm where I belong, I'm with you
