

Under Water

Stanfour

Close your eyes just to see
Where you lost sight of all above
You were peeling all those nights away
Letting go won't be enough

Then the sea called
And the water pulled you out into the open
When the night falls, when the tide turns
Will you wake up and won't forget

All your dreams they have been broken
Before you knew they were gone
And the weight of thousand oceans
Holds you down to the ground

Then the sea called
And the water pulled you out into the open
When the night falls, when the tide turns
Will you wake up and you wake up

Now the sea calls
And the water pulls you out into the open
When the night falls, when the tide turns
Will you wake up and won't forget

Heey, hmm, heey, hmmm

Then the sea called
And the water pulled you out into the open
When the night falls, when the tide turns
Will you wake up and you wake up

Now the sea calls
And the water pulls you out into the open
When the night falls, when the tide turns
Will you wake up and won't forget