The Apparition

Steel Prophet

When the stars are right and you're alone Take a journey, lock the world up tight Out of your mind.

The hall beckons your presence, the doors Open wide you're to decide to turn back

Deep the bowels of this black abyss, Compelled I just can't resist it, take me Take me away take me away I wanna know what's deep within Take me away

Drawing near someone passes through me, A silent entity never looking back I won't dare. Evil eyes staring through he walls of stone As I feared I travel not alone

Laughter's echoes with the blatant wind I have passed the threshold deep within me. Take me away take me away I wanna know what's deep within Take me away

A voice of thunder said turn back Tabernacle is forbidden No mortal dares to enter here. I want to know

Flame is burning center of a fountain yearning, waters Spring eternal, spiritual water physical fire Above the center is sky, cold cold never-ness Just vastness filled with stars upon stars

In the four corners of life are the golden mirrors Reflecting what you are and what you are to be In the first is a young boy white dove in His hand, in the second is a warrior in Armour In the third is the old man gold watch In his hand fourth and last No reflection at all No reflection at all

Waters rise toward physical fire, voice says Tabernacle is forbidden never looking back I don't dare If the water touches the flame Forever in darkness yes I'll remain

White dove flies from the young boys hand
Through the mirror of the old man, only way out
Take me away take me away
I wanna know what's deep within
Take me away
Take me away take me away
I wanna know what's deep within
Take me away specification of the old man, only way out
Take me away
