The clock dont stop And the monkey sits on my back Never know when it will attack Will i pull through or will i fall I try to stand tall humility hits the floor Is this to much for me to absorb or can i take just a little mo Nobody knows, nobody cares Vanity grows when love disappears And then you wanted to talk about it I think you wanted to see what i would say I said im happy to live with out it for a couple of days. Rightly so do i have my self to blame Decisions of the past have they come back at last And the booze dont help it encourages what i felt, memories of the past Lets see if i can add to what ive lost Dont go to sleep ive got a whole lot to say Ive got to figure this out Ive got to get me away so i dont live in the dark, Leave the wrong mark Give me a ride im going back to the start. We're living in a world thats turning slow A town with too many roads We're living around.