

EYEWITNESS

Steven Wilson

You're always an eyewitness to
Oh all the change, all the change
Never feeling the pain
You're never the one to speak up
Oh, keep it quiet, keep it quiet
With you're god-given right

You're always the bridesmaid aren't you
Yeah, always the last to be asked
Never up to the task
You know when to keep your head down
Oh, go along with the swarm
And you can't go wrong

Do as you're told, don't get involved
Cause we're gonna make it happen anyway
Now take your meds and stay in bed
It's all gonna happen to you anyway

You'll never be hoodwinked will you
No, won't decide, won't decide
Never taking a side
You're always an eyewitness it's true
Yeah, laying low, laying low
But you end up alone

Well the world outside it bites and there are complications tha t you have no need to fight
(Need to fight, need to fight)
And there's a place where the future hides
(In every suave design)

Burying witnesses
You're moving at the pace of drifting cloud
Giving nothing back
You're hiding in plain sight and underground

Are you sick of waking up to find the world just changed again (Changed again, changed again)
And it's got so bad that you can't figure out where to lay the blame
(Lay the blame, lay the blame)
