

Revelation

Stone Broken

Revelation

Outside, the light departed
Now we're back, back to where we started
We were found on the ground isolated and
Suffocated and beaten down again
Pick up the fragments of my broken bones
Stitch them together to make myself whole
Under the surface, my skin starts to crawl
Take me back to where we started
Revelation, revelation

I don't even want a sanctuary
Just a little bit of conversation
Like a vision only I can see
This could be another revelation
Revelation, revelation

Outside, a world divided
Find a wall, crawl, and hide behind it
We were bound on the ground, separated and
Suffocated and beaten down again
Made up the answers and bury the truth
All of the secrets are following you
Under the surface, I've hidden it all
Take me back to where we started

I don't even want a sanctuary
Just a little bit of conversation
Like a vision only I can see
This could be another revelation
I've been living in a reverie
But I'm waking up for my salvation
I don't even need a remedy
This could be another revelation

Revelation
Revelation
Revelation
Revelation

I don't even want a sanctuary
Just a little bit of conversation
Like a vision only I can see
This could be another revelation
I don't even want a sanctuary (Woah)
This could be another revelation
Like a vision only I can see (Woah)
This could be another revelation
Revelation