Aaron the Prince, the chosen one And Arleen she's the last Elb in the sun They strolled about there in Radon In the ancient park of Tanalon And Aaron spoke: My love is deep But now my time has come, my love don't weep Just as the nature in fall must fade Now I feel my life will blow away My love hold on for the deed must be done You know that some time this day it must come Through the times, through the joy and the cries We lived in love but my fate's on the rise Unmortal life, though beautiful Unmortal your pain it won't leave your soul A choice was yours, a choice for me My heart cries for you, though I must leave Arleen the light of Senthart Sadness fades her heart Though wise from many a life This pain she can not describe For all this fight you were forseen Fight with your dignity, don't go from me I'm begging you, please don't go alone Words from Arleen he then spoke his own All mortal life, soon lose the fight