Christine

SubRosa

Whispers on the back porch The don't want you anymore He beat you till were raw Then he took something more

Christine

At school the girls call you a whore Your lunch money on the floor But they look you up and down

You found that you were weak At forgiving enemies So much darkness in that room No one gets you, no one could

Never giving in Never again