The Child With the Star On His Head

Sufjan Stevens

Positive Christmas energy, desperately seeking Santa, Take 3

Once in a while, you may think you see better than the others Scrambling around in the dark with your drum There is a time when young men must grow up and be brothers Are you afraid of growing too fast?

And the child with the star on his head All of the world rests on his shoulders And the mother with the child on her breast Blessed is she among women

And the trust we put in things In small ideas, in engineering The world of sports and second best In consequences we will not put to rest

Why crawl around in the snow When you know I am right here Waiting for you to expect something more?

For I am warm, I am calling you close to my table Where I have made us a feast For the year of troubles, they have gone The winter brings a Christmas song

And the child with the star on his head All of the world rests on his shoulders And the mother with the child on her breast Blessed is she among women

Does all the world know better than When Christmas comes the troubles end The troubles end, the troubles end

And by the time there's nothing left An empty tree, a winter vest A winter vest, a winter vest

And all the trust we put in things In dictionaries, in engineering In calendars, and television In father's friends, in consequences
