

So Sorry Girl

Sundy Best

I don't wanna be somebody searching
But I'm a little lost right now
And someone's always hurting
And it's always my fault somehow
No I don't know what tomorrow brings
But I know that there'll be pain
Cause your memory burns like a cigarette
And a needle to my veins

Oh I'm sorry that I let you down
Given you the same old run around
No I don't know why I do the things I do
I'm so sorry girl, for ever losing you

Sometimes I sit and wonder
Was it ever really there
Or was it something we just made up
As an imaginary pair
Or was it just a daydream
Of what we sometimes are
The thought of us shoots through my head at night
And makes me see stars

Oh I'm sorry that I let you down
Given you the same old run around
No I don't know why I do the things I do
I'm so sorry girl, for ever losing you

I guess that you could say
That I was running half blind
Like driving at night
With one headlight

Oh I'm sorry that I let you down
Given you the same old run around
No I don't know why I do the things I do
I'm so sorry girl, for ever losing you
