

Otherside

Sunflower Bean

Days of darkness fade to night
Peering through I can see a crack of light
Slivers of hope, they fade to rust
My daydreams crumble into dust

I walk alone as far as I can find
You stop and ask if I'm alright
There's a hole so big I cannot fill
I don't want you to try but I know you will

Through the grief and tears I cannot hide
I'll see you, see you, see you on the other side

I know that time's supposed to heal
Tell me something good something real
Now I paint my face and pretend
I look for answers in a well that has no end

I know that I'm supposed to call a friend
Can't waste all day alone in bed
But there's that hole where you once been
Now the light is streaming in

Through the grief and tears I
Through the grief and tears I