

I'm on a one-way road to my home on high
Lord, when I die, I'll be heaven-bound
Mourn not to see me go down that holy road
For when I'm gone, I'll make my peace be known

I see your crying eyes turn to diamond skies
As my soul takes flight from my darkened mind
And you'll know that the day has come when this life has run
And a fading sun shines the way back home

As my life changes states, unbound by time and space
You will fill this place and see me go
And we will gather again in the mountains
With family and friends on another plane
