

Empyrean Skies

Synestia

Blinded, I come undone
My ache manifests into festering horror
Oh, what comfortless silence
As I stir in malignant still

This curse
Vile revelation
Pain pours over me
Let it drown me, for what more is there to lose but my life?

Come forth, my dying dreams, overtake me
Sleepless, as I gaze upon the void

Withering, I come undone
My vision shrouded by sufferance
Eclipsing my ever blackened eyes

Eclipsing my soulless eyes

Dissolution; my fading memories veiled by woe
Invidious; these dying dreams begin to take shape in perpetual flames

As the last of daylight dies beneath blackened empyrean skies
A crimson vision presents itself before me

I shall become your tyrant of misery
Inflicting a lifetime of agony
An endless invented night

The sun will set, but never again shall you see it rise
My beckon for vengeance shall unleash true hatred on this world
A merciful end to the human plague
Revenge so horribly complete
Come forth, dying dreams

Empyrean skies shall weep blood black as ash
An endless life of hate
Behold eternal suffering
Witness godless malevolence
I will bring your death
I will be the end of everything you are