

Diamonds

Talia Mar

He wraps you in his riches and diamonds so you can see through the pain
Clothes you in all that you are worth
So you can't see sunshine from rain
But the hail, the wind, it's all too much, wanna bail again
You fail, he sins
It's your call, but thought you were too broke to mend

Run your mouth, 'cause the other day he told you
He wanna fight but you give in to all you do
Your bold words come from a weak mouth
Baby's not much to brag about
Runnin' your mouth as he picks up another bill
You tried to fight with no power, no will
And you will give in to, uh-huh
Runnin' away 'cause you know that worked once
You tried again, but this time he let you run
Your bold words are coming from a strong mouth
And I think you need a way out
Givin' in 'cause you don't know better
You never learn if you can just never
Admit you're wrong
Pack up your bags yourself and get gone

He wraps you in his riches and diamonds so you can see through the pain
Clothes you in all that you are worth
So you can't see sunshine from rain
But the hail, the wind, it's all too much, wanna bail again
You fail, he sins
It's your call, but thought you were too broke to mend
And then he

Covers you in diamonds
Blinds you with his riches
Clothes you in his words just to
Take away your senses
Showers you in gifts
All with his dirty funds
All these words of guilt but you buy them
Just like he buys diamonds
Just like he buys diamonds

Happened once
The first time you blamed him
For what he did
But, of course, you let it happen again
Because your bold words are coming from a weak mouth
It's all we ever hear about
Happened twice
The second time you blamed you
For what he did because he got the best of you
You say your side
Just say you're done
We are gonna re-run

He wraps you in his riches and diamonds so you can see through the pain
Clothes you in all that you are worth
So you can't see sunshine from rain

But the hail, the wind, it's all too much, wanna bail again
You fail, he sins
It's your call, but thought you were too broke to mend
And then he

Covers you in diamonds
Blinds you with his riches
Clothes you in his words just to
Take away your senses
Showers you in gifts
All with his dirty funds
All these words of guilt but you buy them
Just like he buys diamonds

All the games, all the lies
In exchange for a dime
All the times that you fell on the floor
And he left you there to die
All of the bad, all of the sad
You would just let him take it back
Forget the pain, forget the rain
'Til it happens again

He wraps you in his riches and diamonds so you can see through the pain
Clothes you in all that you are worth
So you can't see sunshine from rain
But the hail, the wind, it's all too much, wanna bail again
You fail, he sins
It's your call, but thought you were too broke to mend
And then he

Covers you in diamonds
Blinds you with his riches
Clothes you in his words just to
Take away your senses
Showers you in gifts
All with his dirty funds
All these words of guilt but you buy them
Just like he buys diamonds
Covers you in diamonds
Blinds you with his riches
Clothes you in his words just to
Take away your senses
Showers you in gifts
All with his dirty funds
All these words of guilt but you buy them
Just like he buys diamonds
